To Whom It May Concern,

I am a scientist with an international reputation working in the field of tropical disease under the auspices of the World Health Organization. I have worked in the field of medical research for many years, and my attention has been drawn to the religious teachings of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh because of His innovative approach towards general health care and preventive medicine. In countries all over the world, including Western Europe and the United States, he is making an outstanding contribution to the development of an integrated system of therapy by virtue of His exceptional insight into humanistic psychology and its relation to the etiology of the disease of modern man.

The centres where His work is carried out are growing rapidly and increasing in popularity as a result of the undoubted efficacy of the combinations of methods used, and I have seen many cases myself where dramatic changes have been brought about, to the benefit of the patient.

As a practising Quaker in England for many years, the religious teachings of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh have impressed me greatly. He has succeeded in bringing to life the message of Christ in a way no other contemporary theologian has done, and His application of such a unified interpretation to all the major world religions is an important step towards the goals of peace and religious tolerance enshrined in the American Constitution.

Sincerely,
