

Dr. agr. Klaus Thurner
Peter-Thumb-Straße 44
7750 Konstanz
Germany (West)

Konstanz, 7/15/83

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

Holding a doctorate in agricultural micro-biology I have been involved since many years in the research about hygienic problems of German milk processing. I am also qualified land scaping ecologist (diplome in agricultural engineering) and was engaged in the planning of the First Bavarian Nature Parc.

During a visit of several agricultural cooperatives in Italy which are experimenting with biological dynamic approaches I also had the possibility to see a community of followers of the Indian Master Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh. As ecologist I have always been interested in methods which, in their totality, give more attention to the already existing ressources. I appreciated very much the inventive-ness of these disciples of Rajneesh to find new methods how to recycle organic garbage which normally would have been destroyed by burning.

During this visit I also got to know some of the basic teachings of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, who commits himself in an excellent way to make his knowledge about the present situation of manhood available to all of us and who makes suggestions for the solution of a world-wide ecological crisis.

The American people can be proud that Rajneesh wishes to live and to teach on American territory.

Yours truly

EXHIBIT "A-1065"