RE: BAGWAN SHREE RAJNEESH

Having gained great personal benefit by my long association with the Rajneesh Centre (Sangeet) in Leeds I have pleasure in supporting the work of this great man.

His exceptional talents are firstly to express in very clear and inspiring terms that life is a loving celebration and not an isolating competitive conflict which is the experience of so many people today. Secondly, he adopts an open attitude to re-educational processes (many of which originated in the U.S.A.) as a means to personal and interpersonal experience of that love and celebration. Those who are active within the movement form a cohesive group available to visitors who seek skilled teaching. I have found no evidence of aggressive prosetizing which can be a feature of less enlightened leaders.

What Bagwan says is singularly free from dogma and intellectual theorising and his practical approach has a direct appeal to people of all ages and nationalities.

The benefit I have derived is certainly of great value in my contact with everyone I meet both socially and professionally.
