TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I am a librarian and studied librarianship from 1979 to 1982 at the Frederik Muller Academy in Amsterdam. Last year I have worked at the Public Library of Amsterdam.

A library, just like many other governmental bodies, is a mass institute, where the relationship between librarian and client is usually very impersonal. One of the teachings of Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh is that one ought to do his work with love and awareness. In my case this means to be open to the public visiting the library. As a consequence people open up themselves, which greatly improves the atmosphere in the library.

Another thing which I have learned from Bhagwan Shree is to reduce any problem to its essential core, which makes things simpler and clearer to the benefit of both me and my colleagues. More than once therefore I have been told by colleagues that they were glad to have a Rajneeshee in their midst.

In my opinion Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh has a substantial influence on a large part of the Dutch society as his books are frequently borrowed from the libraries.
