To Whom It May Concern

I graduate in 1976 as a psychologist at The University of Montreal. Next during my studies or during the following years I practiced in The Robert Gifford Hospital, near Quebec City, I could find myself at ease with the way the various psychological approaches look at man of deal with man.

Only when I started reading Bhagwan's books it felt like there was a living man with a true understanding of man. He speaks with modern simple words yet his insights into human complexities go far beyond everything I read before. He realized a unique synthesis of the Western humanistic approach and the Eastern spiritual insights.

Furthermore, something of tremendous value is happening around him. Well known Therapists from all over the world, unaffiliated with Gestalt or Egan-like approaches, gathered around him. They are now offering the ultimate in growth process, blending meditation and psychology in an atmosphere of love and laughter.

In the psychological field Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh stands out as a unique leader. I sincerely hope that he continues his work in the United States.

Sincerely yours
